Council Votes to Hold Existing TV Rates for Further Study

by Diane Oberg

On February 28, following a brief public hearing, the Greenbelt City Council voted unanimously to order the existing rates for "basic" cable television service to remain in effect for an additional 90 days, beginning March 13. This maintains the city's ability to analyze the rates further before determining whether the rates are fair or too high. If council finds they are too high, it can order the rates lowered.

Cable TV Act of 1992

The city's review of the cable rates is part of the reregulation of cable rates under the Cable Act of 1992. The city's regulatory powers are limited, however, to the "basic" service—channels 2-32 on the "B" side of the cable.

There are two complications to this action. First, on February 22, the Federal Communications Commission announced that cable rates should be cut by 7%. However, the actual regulations defining how the cut is to be made will not be available until the end of March.

Second, if the city orders the rates for basic service reduced, it is likely that the majority of cable customers in the city will see no change in their rates. Customers getting only basic cable service currently pay $10.47 per month.

Beyond basic, the other available services are: cable programming service (channels 2A-22A, 27A-32A and 40A) and the Multivision variety package (Home Team Sports, Turner Network Television, WWOR and WTBS). These two services plus the basic service are available at the combined rate of $28.95. This is equivalent to the cost of these services, plus the $3 monthly charge for a remote control unit, prior to the implementation of the Cable Act of 1992. Premium and pay-per-view channels are also available.

28 Franchises

David Wilson, Vice President and General Manager of Multivision, said that the FCC required the company to calculate rates separately for each of the 28 franchises Multivision holds in Prince Georges County. However, the franchising jurisdictions, Wilson said, complained that it would be difficult to explain why the rate in their city was higher than that in a neighboring jurisdiction. Multivision's solution was to create the MVP, which is unregulated, and to set its price at the level necessary to make the three services cost a total of $28.95.

A few months after the new rates went into effect, Multivision discovered an error in its calculations, which led to a slight overcharge for basic service.

Late Bulletin

Maryland Cable Corp., the owner of the Northern Prince Georges County cable television system which is operated by Multi-Vision Cable TV, together with its parent Maryland Cable Holdings Corp., filed a "prepackaged" bankruptcy on March 10. The "prepackaging" refers to a plan of reorganization and the United States Bankruptcy Court has been asked to hold a hearing as soon as possible to confirm the proposal.

The reorganization, anticipated to be completed around September 30, 1994, would result in new equity ownership of the system by the present holders of Maryland Cable's high yield bonds. According to the proposed plan, the operation of the system would continue as usual, including the construction of cable plant to serve new subdivisions.

Only those subscribers not getting the MVP had their total charges decreased, however.

Big Basic Increase

Under the Cable Act, those subscribers getting only basic service (previously known as the "universal tier") saw the largest increase. The rate for this service rose from $3.00 before regulation to $10.47 now. At the same time, the number of channels offered was reduced, with WTBS and WWOR shifted to the "A" side. These stations can be added to the basic service for $2 each.

Norm Weyel called the increase an "unconscionable" act that "cries out for correction." He urged the city to tell Multivision to "take a walk" when it came time to renew the franchise. Eunice Coxon also called for a reduction in the basic cable charge.

Channel Changes

Multivision Community and Government Relations Manager Margaret Mosley explained the company's interpretation of the cable regulations. All channels must be treated as equal in value, she said. In addition, all broadcast channels within a 50 mile radius must be included in the basic service. Thus, three channels, including a shopping channel in Arlington, were added to the "B" side, and WWOR and WTBS were shifted to the "A" side of the cable.

Another provision of the cable act, Mosley said, requires the company to make premium channels available to basic subscribers. This prevents the company from using the slots currently occupied by premium and pay-per-view channels for basic service.

Citizens Not Convinced

Weyel did not find these arguments persuasive. He questioned whether customers really needed two Showtimes or three Home Box Office channels.

Doug Love pointed out that some premium channels were offered on the "A" side. Since the company is not meeting the goal of providing all premium services to the basic subscribers, they ought to abandon the goal, he said, and "give us what we want." He complained that citizens are "getting less for more" and argued that the higher rates discourage customers from upgrading their service. He acknowledged, however, that Multivision's system is better than some others.

Wilson noted that if more channels were added to the basic service, the cost of that service would increase.

Barry Schlesinger urged the city to seek its own interpretations of the cable regulations and not to rely upon the company's statements. City Public Information and Cable Communications Coordinator Beverly Palau assured him that the city is doing so, in part through a consortium of county jurisdictions.

Financial Problems

Wilson updated the council and citizens on the company's financial status. At the end of December, it signed a financial restructuring plan and is seeking approval from its bondholders. If the bondholders do not agree, the company is prepared, Wilson said, to file a prepackaged bankruptcy under Chapter 11 to implement the restructuring package without bondholder approval. These steps, he said, would put the company on a "sounder financial footing" and would have no effect on service or rates.

Greenbelt Reacts with Anger As County Nixes Lake Plans

by Virginia Beauchamp

An unsheduled item, added to the agenda by City Manager Daniel Hobbs at the regular city council meeting on Monday, March 14, evoked disbelief, consternation, and anger from councilmembers, city staff and citizens. That very morning, the city had been notified that the permit to proceed with plans for the creation of Greenbrook Lake would be denied by the State of Maryland. The lake design proposed for Greenbrook East had been in the planning stages for almost a decade.

Notification was given by Ross A. Beschner, Chief of the Southern Division for Nontidal Wetlands and Waterway Division of the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) following a meeting with representatives of Prince Georges County's Watershed Protection Branch (WPB). Beschner said he believed it was not necessary that the wetlands be impacted as extensively as design plans in the application described.

Instead he suggested a different design configuration for the proposed lake which would

Citizens Air Their Opinions At Public Hearing on Trails

by Sandra Lange

Approximately one dozen people attended the public hearing on the proposed Trails Plan March 8 at the Windsor Green community building. The features of 14 different trails/routes were discussed. The city staff said the purpose of the Trails Plan was to "promote the existing trails network as a transportation and recreation resource, and to provide guidance for the planning, design and construction of additions to the trails system..."

A trail is characterized as a non-motorized route, generally used for recreation or transportation. Trails come in three types: bicycle, hiker/biker, and scenic. A bicycle trail is an "on-road recreational or transportation route intended for cyclists..." There are no bicycle lanes on any road in Greenbelt, nor have any roads been built or modified to... accommodate bicyclists" the city staff report notes. Hiker/biker, trails and scenic trails are intended for both cyclists and pedestrians. The 14 trails discussed, however, exist either formally as a maintained "path" or informally through use.

Offer to Maintain Trails

Doug Love, representing volunteers calling themselves the Trail Maintenance Committee, stated that his group wanted the responsibility of maintaining the trails with supplies provided by the city. Implicit in this remark seemed to be that the volunteers would maintain the trails in a more sensitive manner than the city's public works crew. Betsy Likowski, however, felt that the city crew should maintain the trails "once or twice a year."

The question of markers to designate an area as an official trail was discussed, with Love noting that many people are against signs in the woods, feeling they deface the natural beauty. Betsy Likowski stated that "tasteful signs" could be placed along a trail entrance to assist the novice trail walker.

Councilman Edward Putens worried about a proliferation of trails, thereby eliminating many naturally wooded areas. He also commented about the danger of creating trails for the benefit of specialized groups rather than serving the needs of the public at large.

Lola Skolnik, chairperson of the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) wondered who were the members of the Trail Maintenance Committee. In a similar vein, Joe Wilkinson of PRAB, noted that there were five different groups working on the trails plan. "How many more groups are going to be working on this?" he questioned. He recommended that a task force be formed composed of members of several groups so that a trails plan satisfactory to all could be developed. "We can't let individual groups try to create trails on public property," he maintained.

Skolnik felt that her committee, as well as the Advisory Planning Board, had worked very

Bureaucratic Swamp

The Council and citizens of Greenbelt should let their county representative know how upset they are with the way that the Prince Georges County Department of Environmental Resources has jerked the city around concerning the construction of Greenbrook Lake in Schrom Hills Park. The County has been involved at every step in the city's extensive efforts to "come up with a design for the lake that would satisfy the United States Army Corps of Engineers, the State of Maryland and the residents of Greenbelt East. Nevertheless, now that permit approval time is here, the county Watershed Protection Branch has withheld its support for the design, causing the state to request that the lake project be redesigned once again and once again reduced in size.

The planning of this project has been going on for more than six years since agreement was first reached between the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC), the developers of Greenbrook, Michael T. Rose and Associates and the city to provide within the park a scenic five-acre lake. The lake, needed as a storm water retention area, was to be bordered by landscaped areas and woodland and viewed from adjacent homes in Greenbrook. Rose and other developers put up the money for WSSC to build the facility.

Unfortunately, the county government took over responsibility for storm water management, including this project, before the project could be begun. The county then advised the city that it did not have the staff needed to manage the design of the project and suggested that the city could do that work for the county and be reimbursed for its costs. Because the city was anxious to see the project completed at an early date, it agreed to do this. However the county still delayed the project interminably by failing to render needed approvals for an agreement to do the work and for the selection of professional consultants.

During that time, the regulation of the use of wetlands changed dramatically and the Corps of Engineers became involved in the approval process. Not only did the regulations change but they kept on changing so as to cause confusion as to exactly what was and was not allowed.

Finally, about a year ago, the city consultant devised the compromise plan for a double lake of two-plus acres that would disturb only an acre of wetland, a disturbance acceptable to the Corps of Engineers. Both the county and the state were involved in reaching that solution. It was left to the city council and staff to explain to irate Greenbrook "lakefront" homeowners and other Greenbelt East residents why the lake hadn't been built yet and why it had to be shrunk in size.

Now, unless something changes, it's back to the drawing board. While that is being done, who knows what bureaucrat in what agency will come up with another regulation to make the new design unacceptable.

The city might well consider throwing the whole mess back in the hands of the county where it belongs. Unfortunately, the track record of the Department of Environmental Resources is by this time so bad that it is not in the best interests of Greenbelt to do so.

The Greenbelt Gardener

by Rosie Rhubarb

A spring vegetable garden can be planted any time now—as soon as the soil can be worked. Peas, onions, radishes, lettuce, and green leafy vegetables are some of the stars of this season's vegetable garden.

The thing to bear in mind with the spring garden is that these plants love cool weather. Their season comes to an end when the weather turns hot. Then it will be time for the tomatoes to be planted.

Growing peas is a gamble, but one many gardeners are willing to take. A long, early hot spell can mean the pea crop will do poorly.

Spinach, mustard, turnip greens, and domesticated dandelion are so nutritious, just full of vitamins. Their strong taste is lessened when they are picked young and steam cooked quickly.

Leave Woods Alone

The purpose of buying Parcels 1 and 2 was to prevent them from being developed. All Greenbelters benefit from the undeveloped woods, even if they never actually explore them. We benefit by the lack of traffic, noise, and pollution that accompanies development. This type of benefit requires a conscious effort to appreciate because it is not as easy to visualize, compared to a building or a road or a ball field.

Some people say the trails in Parcels 1 and 2 should be maintained by the city, in order to make the woods more accessible to people. This maintenance would include building bridges over gullies, marking trails with signs, and distributing maps of the trails.

Should the woods be any more accessible than they already are? I agree that the trails can be somewhat challenging. I've sprained my ankle in those woods. That wasn't the trail's fault, that was my fault. After all, this was the woods, not a sidewalk, so I need to be a little more careful. I've had to slow down in order to cross a stream. Sometimes this means getting my shoes muddied and feet wet. Well, that's the woods and I should not expect anything less. Besides, I earn a sense of accomplishment when I cross a stream. There is no sense of accomplishment to be gained from walking across a footbridge. I've seen trails in the woods and not known where they lead. Sometimes I take them, other times I leave them for another day. When I follow a new trail, I experience the joy of discovery. I did not use a map to find these trails. I simply went out, exploring, looking for a place to go.

I ask those who seek development of the trails to appreciate the woods for what they are. Greenbelt already has smooth, unfettered trails in, for example, Greenbelt Lake and Stream Valley Parks. The woods of Parcels 1 and 2 should remain a challenge to be discovered.

If the trails are developed, the woods will cease to be—the solitude, peacefulness, and natural beauty of the woods will be lost. Alexander Barnes, Jr.

Grow several types of lettuces for a variety of tastes and textures. To get more out of your lettuce crop you can pick the leaves when they are still half grown. Hot weather makes lettuce and greens "bolt"—grow tall and flower as the plant struggles to produce seed.

Despite all these problems when the weather gets hot, these vegetables planted now can produce great tasting salads this spring. And another good point about the spring garden is that it will grow well even in some shade.

When to plant? When the soil is dry enough so that a handful of dirt crumbles rather than sticks together when squeezed in your hand. The soil could be dry enough to plant any time now. And you can help it dry out faster by covering up the garden bed when it rains.

85 Runners Compete In Greenbelt Marathon

Eighty-five spirited marathoners completed the 33rd edition of DC Road Runners' George Washington's Birthday Marathon in Greenbelt on February 20. With temperatures in the mid-60s, it was one of the warmest races in the history of the event. The additional water stop added this year was greatly appreciated.

Alan Ruben, a native of London, England, clocked an impressive 2:37:54 to win overall. He was followed closely by Paul Peterson of Bethesda.

Bonnie Barnard-Lopez of Bethesda, who has won a number of Snowball Series races, continued her sweep with a 3:02:19.

The top open and masters finishers received beautiful silver bowls to commemorate the event. Other age group winners received engraved medals and all finishers received medallions.

Greenbelt's Hugh Jascourt was in on the first Washington's Birthday Marathon in 1962. Other Greenbelters help organize it to this day. Two other annual distance races in Greenbelt, the 15K Festival race on Labor Day and the 10 and 20 mile races in December use much of this marathon course on the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center. The Greenbelt Youth Center provides showers for the out-of-area runners. Not available at this time are the names of the Greenbelters who were in the 6th annual 3-person marathon relay, in which each runner runs about 8½ miles.

Dick Good (64), former Greenbelt now living in western Maryland, not by accident, but in Accident, Md., finished 66th in 4:27:30. Loving farthest away was Rayleen Hill (20) of Dartmouth, NS who finished 6th among the females in 3:35:10. Oldest runner again was Don McNelly (75), of Rochester, NY in 5:45:17. McNelly has run here many times.

Baseball '94 Parent Orientation Planned

The Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club's Baseball '94 program has scheduled a parent orientation meeting for Wednesday, March 30 at the Greenbelt Youth Center. Information and expectations regarding the up-coming season will be discussed by the team coaches. All player parents need to attend because certain forms must be completed before team practices begin on April 1. Players are of course, invited too. The meeting for the 14-year-old team (boys born in 1980) begins at 7 p.m.; the 13-year-old team (boys born in 1981) meets at 8 p.m.; and the 16 and under team (boys born in 1979-78) meets at 9 p.m. Each meeting should last no more than an hour. If a parent cannot attend at the scheduled team time, they are urged to stop by anytime after 7 p.m. in order to complete the necessary forms. People who have not yet registered are urged to do so before this orientation.

Parents call Mel Scites, the Club Registrar, at: (H) 441-8689. Registration is on a first-come basis! Coaches for the 13-year-old team and the 15/16 old team are still needed. For further baseball information, contact Jeff Keir, the Club's Baseball Commissioner, at: (H) 552-9234.

Fast-food Planned At Greenway Center

A plan to convert Kangaroo Katie's restaurant in Greenway Center into an "All-n-One" operation for three fast food restaurants will be considered by the City Council at its meeting on March 28. The three restaurants—Pizza Hut, Taco Bell and Kentucky Fried Chicken (KFC) are owned by Pepsi Co. The building will be reduced in size to accommodate a drive-through window.

Council can oppose the site plan, approve it, or take no position. In any case, the final decision will be made by the Prince Georges County Planning Board. Combined Property owners of Greenway Center, have expressed their opposition to the "All-n-One" operation, preferring, instead, a traditional restaurant. They say that a fast food restaurant would cause traffic, trash, and access problems.

Easter Egg Hunt At Greenbriar

The children of Greenbriar and Glen Oaks are preparing, once again, for their traditional Easter Egg Hunt, which will be held on Saturday, April 2 at 11 a.m. sharp. All Greenbriar/Glen Oaks children, ages preschool to 12, should meet in the Terrace Room.

The Easter Bunny will be on hand to visit with children, and there will be a coloring party.

The Lion's Roar

by David Ward

April 8, 9 and 10, 1994 have been designated as "White Cane Days." Greenbelt Lion's Club members will be at Giant, Co-op, NationsBank, and Safeway soliciting donations which will be used to invest in our community action programs such as eye treatment for those unable to pay, aid for fire victims, the Greenbelt Recreation Department, and other local projects. Greenbelt citizens have traditionally been very generous and once again we look to you for your support.

On April 9, the Greenbelt Lion's Club will be represented by several of its members at District 22-C Night. The annual "Humanitarian of the Year" award is given. This year's honored guest and recipient will be Art Monk of the Washington Redskins.

On April 23 (rain date April 30) the Club will be cleaning the road sides along Kenilworth Avenue between Crescent Road and Cherrywood Lane as our part of Adopt-A-Highway Program. Please drive gently as some of us are not as agile as we once were.

Many Lions Club members volunteered their time by visiting nursing homes, working with youth and with other civic groups. Some even gave their blood (at the Red Cross Blood Drive). However, fund-raising is an integral part of Lionism because some of our services have to be provided by business people. As a result the Greenbelt Lions Club is involved in projects such as White Cane, the Pancake Breakfast, and Christmas Gift Wrapping at Beltway Plaza. We are also selling "Prince Georges County Dining Out" discount coupon booklets.

The Club continues to receive communications from those assisted in Illinois as a result of our "Holiday Sleigh." The "Adopt-A-Family" program for Midwest flood victims is alive and well. As a matter-of-fact, the Beltsville Lions Club recently adopted a family. For more information on this on-going project please contact Lion Nancy Ward at 441-9082.

Choir Concert

The Greenbelt Combined Choir will perform a Palm Sunday concert on Sunday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Greenbelt Community Church. Selections from Godspell will be featured.

Recycling Corner

Plastics recycling? What's good? What's not? The curbside program recycles empty milk/water jugs and soda bottles. Detergent bottles marked HDPE #2 are also acceptable. Removing the caps is important for two reasons: the caps are made from a different resin not recyclable at this time and sealed containers won't crush during the bailing process. In fact, plastic bales have been known to burst from the pressure.

Rinse containers and remove caps. Milk jugs can be crushed. Don't include butter/yogurt tubs, clamshells, motor oil bottles or medicine bottles. ## Volunteers Needed

The Red Cross Greater Chesapeake and Potomac Blood Services has openings for volunteers to assist at blood drives in the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Area.

Blood Services volunteers register donors, assemble blood collection containers and serve juice, cookies and other refreshments at the canteen. Hours are flexible and can be tailored to individual needs. Blood drives normally run six hours. Training is provided and no prior experience is necessary.

Red Cross supplies 90 percent of the blood required by over 80 hospitals serving the Greater Chesapeake and Potomac Region. The organization needs to collect, process and test 1500 units of blood daily to fill this need. Help the Red Cross provide these vital units of blood to hospital patients.

For information, call 1-800-272-0094 ext. 4602 or your local Red Cross chapter.

In Memoriam

Elda Cantor was quiet and philosophical. She enjoyed the sunshine at the pool. At the Center on mild days she would relax with the Sunday paper or a library book. She took an interest in world situations—not from an economic or technical viewpoint but from how these affected the wellbeing of people. Elda travelled some, late in her life. On a trip to Europe (Heidelberg and Paris), she was surprised at how neat and clean the European cities are—and how good the food is!

Elda followed literature and art. She appreciated our library and always had several books, mostly serious and literary, to read.

Always friendly in a quiet way, Elda was pleasantly typical of Greenbelt. We enjoyed her company.

and greenhouse flower beds were cleaned. Annual flowers were planted.

Seedlings were planted in the greenhouses that will grow into plants used in displays around the city.

Work done at Northway ball-fields included: the barricade was repainted, the chain link fence was repaired, and temporary fencing was installed in front of the topsoil stockpile.

Pot holes were repaired and storm drains were cleaned. The Recycling Center was cleaned. Trees along Crescent Road were trimmed and brush chipped.

TAX TIPS

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein urged taxpayers to be careful when completing the standard deduction worksheets in the Maryland tax booklet instructions as errors involving the standard deduction are frequent.

About 61% of Maryland income tax returns claim the standard deduction.

The comptroller said taxpayers are committing another frequent error by neglecting to round numbers on their state forms. People are reminded to round all dollar figures entered on the form and write as neatly as possible in blue or black ink. Rounding and using blue or black ink will cut down on math errors and help make sure data imaging equipment will process the return accurately and speed up the refund check.

Figures from W-2's and other documents which end with 50 cents or higher should be rounded up to the next higher dollar when entering them on the Maryland income tax form. Figures of 49 cents or less should be rounded down to the next lower dollar. Taxpayers should enter only whole dollar amounts, not using dollar signs, commas or decimal points with double zeros. Using only one staple to attach the W-2 and the other papers to the tax form and using the envelope provided will also speed the process.

Pets on Wheels Visit Elderly

by Linda Savaryn

Several Greenbelt residents and their pets spend one hour a week visiting residents at the Greenbelt Nursing Center and members of the University Fellowship Adult Care Center in College Park. They are volunteers in the Prince Georges County "Pets on Wheels" program, which is overseen by the Prince Georges Department of Family Services to help make the lives of elderly citizens a little less lonely.

Some of the volunteers include Cindy Lou Carmona and her miniature poodle "Tasha Ann"; Louise Wilding and her dog "James Robert," a part golden retriever, part cocker spaniel; Gail Rainie and her Chinese shar-pei named "Greta Garbo"; and Barbara Mohr and her two dogs, "Tanna," a samoyed, and "Velvet," a chow.

According to the volunteers, participating in the "Pets on Wheels" program has been a rewarding experience for themselves as well as their pets.

Barbara Mohr said one of her dogs, Velvet a stray she took in one winter, has become calmer.

"When I first took her in she was petrified. She wouldn't let anyone pet her. Since I've been taking her to the Greenbelt Nursing Center, she has become more outgoing and now lets people pet her."

When asked if she would encourage others to volunteer, she responded with an emphatic "yes."

"When you see how much it means... You can just see the expression on their (resident's) faces change."

Similar sentiments were expressed by Louise Wilding.

"It's such a wonderful experience. The volunteers who go get far more than those on the receiving end. It's one of the most rewarding things I do. Even after a long day of work, I wouldn't dream of not going."

According to Melissa Underdown, director of volunteer activities at the Center, the visit from the volunteers gives the residents something to look forward to in the evenings. "I am very grateful to our volunteers," she said.

Anyone who would like to know more about the Pets on Wheels program may call the Department of Family Services at 248-6606.

For Owners of Pets

A brochure detailing what dog and cat owners should do in the event of a natural or man-made disaster in Maryland is now available.

For a free copy of "Disaster Action Guidelines for Dog and Cat Owners," send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Maryland Veterinary Medical Association, Box 439, Fallston, Md. 21047.

GREENBELT THEATRE EXPANDS ITS HOURS

by Eileen Peterson

As Spring comes to Greenbelt, one of the most encouraging sights is the lighted marquee of the Greenbelt Theater in Roosevelt Center, still alive after a winter which saw the threat of its having to close permanently.

In December, it seemed that the theater might close after the holidays. However, P & G Theaters owner Paul Sanchez, who rents the theater here, decided to keep it open on weekends only. He raised the ticket price in order to book more recent pictures; this was made possible because distributors had earlier restrictions on which movies could be ordered by discount movie theaters.

Open Daily

Happily, the increased support by patrons concerned about the possible closing convinced Sanchez to begin showing movies seven days a week. Until two weeks ago, the theater was only open Friday through Sunday nights with a Sunday late-afternoon matinee.

Sanchez is still looking for a fellow investor with whom to finance the conversion of the theater into a movie-and-food entertainment center. In the meantime, he hopes that augmenting his weekend schedule with one evening show Monday through Thursday will better serve the community.

"I appreciate all the support and kind words my customers have expressed. I hope I can find a way to stay open in Greenbelt," comments Sanchez.

Meanwhile, some Greenbelt citizens are investigating ways in which the original Greenbelt Theater sign can be reconstructed and put back onto the front of the theater. Also the city is formulating a signage scheme to better serve visitors from outside the city.

New House Connection Charges Voted by WSSC

The six commissioners of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission have voted to adopt new, uniform house connection charges, with a proviso to revisit the issue within six months. Beginning April 8, the charge for residential and non-residential small sized water lines will be $850, and $1,275 for small sized sewer lines, for a total of $2,125. The old rate for one-inch residential water and sewer lines was $1,550.

The commissioners had been at an impasse over a proposed two-tiered system in which a typical house connection in already developed areas would be $7,425, and $1,525 for a house connection in an undeveloped area. Staff members of the Commission had presented the two-tiered and uniform rate options to the commissioners after cost analyses showed that it is much more expensive to install water and sewer lines in developed communities, where it is often necessary to dig up streets and curbs, impact rights of way, handle traffic control, and work around such improvements as are found in urban, as opposed to suburban areas.

Trails Plan

hard to come up with a trails plan. "We need a Master Plan in place," she stated. "I hope this proposal will set the stage for a plan to be adopted by the city council which will give us a blueprint for future projects."

Ray Stevens, representing the Woodlands Committee of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., stated that the city should not depict trails on a map that goes through private property. This did not mean that GHI objected to anyone using a trail on GHI property, only that GHI did not want to create the impression that a trail that goes through its property is open to the public.

Link to Metro

Several people commented on the specific trails, noting which ones they favored to be developed further. Alex Barnes, Jr., member of PRAAB and avid biker/hiker/runner, greatly favored a trail that provided access to the Metrorail from Cherrywood Lane and a safe crossing of Kenilworth Avenue from Crescent Road to Cherrywood Lane with appropriate traffic signal timing.

The proposed link from the Springhill Lake area to Metro runs from the intersection of Cherrywood Lane and Springhill Drive, across the A. H. Smith property to the Metro station. It was noted by City Administrative Assistant Eric Berlin that the Smith property is private, outside the city limits, and the land costs for development of this trail are unknown.

Barnes did not favor development of the Perimeter Road Trail which runs through Parcels 1 and 2 and the 7-acre tract (wooded area) along the Baltimore-Washington Parkway). The staff report proposed to minimally improve the existing path, place the trails on the map, and make them "user friendly." Barnes suggested "letting nature manage itself in these woods. The trails already exist for people to use. Advertising (them) might increase their use," he warned.

Bicycle Priorities

Bill Clarke, representing the Greenbelt Bicycle Coalition (GBC), listed that group's top ten capital improvement projects. Widening of Hanover Parkway is their number one trails project. GBC wants 14-foot curb lanes from Schrom Hills Park to Good Luck Road when the road is reconstructed for new development. They also favor paving the gravel shoulders along Crescent Road and construction of bike lanes from Ivy Lane to Metro Drive. (Bike lanes have recently been marked on Ivy Lane).

Eric Berlin noted that if the City Council adopts the work plan contained in the Capital Improvement Plan book (CIP), "a large part of the trails will be built" as part of the CIP.

Berlin further discussed the Circle Trail and Inner City Trail proposed by former City Manager James Giese in an earlier issue of the News Review. Berlin stated that Giese's recommendation to cut through the box culvert under the Beltway would not be feasible since presently that area is under six feet of water. In other areas Berlin noted, "much of the trail already existed."

Council member Rodney Roberts vehemently attacked the ideas presented by Giese, stating he "can't see any reason to pave a big circle around old Greenbelt. Why would anyone walk around all of old Greenbelt?"

City Manager Dan Hobbs quickly retorted that he "appreciated the thoughtfulness contained in the article . . . I think Jim Giese performed a service in making us think . . ." about alternatives, Hobbs stated.

Mayor Antoinette (Toni) Bram also felt the former city manager's opinions should be considered. "We have a lot of different trails that need to be addressed," she declared, as well as assessing the particular needs of persons who use pedestrian paths and bikeways to get somewhere as opposed to wooded trails for recreational use. "There are different levels of paths and trails to make decisions on," she observed.

The hearing ended with the knowledge that much was yet to be discussed on this issue before a Master Plan for Trails is finally adopted.

Junior Civitans from four schools work on their rows of canned goods on the Eleanor Roosevelt High School track.

Miles of Cans Project

On Saturday, February 26, the Junior Civitan project Miles of Cans was held at the Eleanor Roosevelt High School track. The project lasted from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. and it involved four high school and middle school Junior Civitan Clubs from Maryland. (Junior Civitan is an international community service organization for students.)

The clubs that attended were from Winston Churchill High School, Potomac; Springbrook High School Silver Spring; Hyattsville Middle School; and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. The project involved members of each club placing the canned foods that they have collected around the track, one every three feet, to see which club could go the farthest around the track. Hyattsville Middle School's Junior Civitans won with 603 cans of food stretching about two-fifths of a mile. Eleanor Roosevelt High School came in a close second with 476 canned food items. If the rows of cans had been laid end to end one can every three feet they would have stretched nine-tenths of a mile.

In addition to this activity, each Junior Civitan club built a sculpture from their canned foods for the International Junior Civitan Can-Do sculpture photo contest.

At the end of the day just a little less than 1500 cans were delivered to Elizabeth House in Laurel which will distribute them to needy families in this area. The project was organized and run by Josh Olsen from Eleanor Roosevelt High School and Christina Montreys from High Point High School.

Fifty Years Ago Panty Raid

by James Giese

January, 1944 — Greenbelt's normal crime-free life was severely shattered by a plague of thefts. At least 15 pairs of panties and other feminine unmentionables were stolen from local clotheslines within a two-week period. The police were reported to be working on several clues.

The following week, three inmates of the Jasper Oldham farm (at the end of Hamilton Place, also called Oldham Farm Road) escaped and ran rampant through town, resulting in the police switchboard being flooded with calls. Police Officers Johnnie Belton and Bud Attick took on "haawg rasslin." After expending considerable energy, the trio of piggies who had decided to go to town were rounded up and returned to captivity.

Police Chief George Panagoulis also had his problem that month. During a night in the big city with his father and two brothers, both in the military, the Chief's car was stolen. It was recovered four days later by the District police, severely damaged.

Plan to Revive Older Towns Described at Council Meeting

by Virginia Beauchamp

Councilmember Thomas White, who arrived 40 minutes late for the March 14 city council meeting, having just flown in from Australia, commented when asked where he had spent the morning that he had been "over the Pacific." "I had coffee yesterday in a shop in Sydney," he added. He had missed by a few minutes a presentation by Dale Hutchinson, Chief of the Development Review Division of the Maryland-National Capital Park & Planning Commission, on Prince Georges Countys new revitalization plan to aid older Communities inside the Beltway.

Hutchinson, who appeared at the invitation of the city, which is interested in assuming more planning and zoning authority, described this program to assist communities along the Route 1 corridor to take action toward their own renewal. Authorized by state legislation, it had been developed to deal with current design requirements that could not be met in redevelopment initiatives in these older municipalities.

Among the sorts of requirements, enacted after these towns were built, which might act as barriers to revitalization are parking lot design standards, including landscaping and screening; the number of parking and loading spaces; sign location, size and setback; and building and accessory building locations and sizes. Waivers from these requirements may be granted by the Planning Board as "departures" or "variances" but the process is time-consuming, sometimes taking as long as four months to complete.

Under the so-called "overlay plan," approval authority may be granted to the municipalities for variances of these types. Since the local communities are more familiar than the MNCPPC with their own planning issues and their specific needs, they can act with more dispatch, Hutchinson said. Municipalities can decide to opt in; they can later also decide to opt out, he said. The plan is applicable only to developments that were "substantially" complete before November 1949—which would of course include old Greenbelt.

"It sounds tempting," said council member Judith Davis. She felt that whether or not Greenbelt chose to adopt it needed further study by city attorney Robert Manzi to discover whether there might also be liabilities. She felt that the Advisory Planning Board might study the implications as well. Council then referred the issue to Manzi.

New Sign at Baptist Church

The city's lack of jurisdiction over signage issues came up later in the meeting when Celia Wilson, Director of Planning and Community Development described a matter concerning a new illuminated sign which had been purchased by the Baptist Church for installation near Crescent Road. Approval had already been granted by the county, without reference to the city's own guidelines.

In the past the city has been able to work with developers of new properties, restricting the size and placement of any signs, Wilson said. In fact, however, the city has no legal jurisdiction over such matters.

Wilson described very pleasant negotiations with representatives from the Baptists when the city became aware of their intentions. For example, they had already agreed to move the sign further back from the roadway, to reduce the illumination, and to landscape the base. Although the sign exceeds in height the city's specifications, she felt that city horticulturist Bill Phelan could work with the church on landscaping plans, possibly to create berming around the base to reduce the sign's visual impact.

Noise Pollution

After some discussion, council agreed to schedule a hearing on the adoption of an ordinance giving the city control over noise pollution. Prince Georges County already has such a measure, which prohibits noise audible more than 50 feet from its source in residential areas between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Unfortunately, without an enabling municipal ordinance, the Greenbelt Police lack authority to enforce it.

Council member Edward Putens expressed some dissatisfaction with the proposed draft. He called for a work session in which options used in similar ordinances by Ocean City and by Cheverly could also be explored.

Council Tidbits

On a motion by council member White, council approved the selection of the Motorola company for the provision of radio maintenance services for the Greenbelt Police Department at a cost of $25,508.40.

Council also agreed to hire for a second year the auditing firm of Keller Bruner & Company. The city staff had been very pleased with their work in the previous year because they had brought a fresh perspective to the city's accounting records and had made a number of useful recommendations. The proposed charge for the audit was $12,000.

Earlier in the meeting, council granted a request by Alexander Barnes, Jr. to read aloud a letter he had prepared in response to an argument by Betsy Likowski at an earlier work session on trails in Parcels 1 and 2. Likowski had spoken in favor of markers to denote trails already in existence, and of limited bridging over streams to ensure the safety of walkers. Barnes' letter opposed any kind of development.

Council also accepted a report from the Advisory Planning Board favoring the construction by Oncology Services of a treatment facility off Greenway Center Drive. They also accepted a report by the Community Relations Advisory Board suggesting that a portion of the new Community Building be named for the late council member Charles F. Schwan.

Poison Control Center to Close

Concerned physicians and officials at Children's Hospital are urging local governments and the Washington community to help save the National Capital Poison Control Center. The Center was scheduled to close on February 28, and would have left the region with few resources for poison information. It has received a four-month extension to locate permanent funding.

"The Poison Center handled more than 34,000 cases of poisoning in 1992, with 75% of the cases managed at home," said Dr. Martin Eichelberger, surgeon and Director of Emergency Trauma Services. "More than half of the cases involved children under six, and it would be tragic if parents could no longer make that one phone call to get help in what could be a life-threatening situation."

Dr. Eichelberger, who also serves as president of the National Safe Kids Campaign, said without the Poison Center, calls to 911 will increase, as well as ambulance transports to local emergency rooms.

"On behalf of the many children whose lives have been saved because of the work of the Poison Center, both from the standpoint of prevention and by being available during an acute crisis, we are asking the community to join us in demanding that this tragedy be averted," said Ellie Runion, Director of Advocacy and Community Affairs at Children's.

Established in 1870, Children's Hospital is a private, non-profit medical and research facility that offers a complete range of pediatric specialties to local, national and international patients.

Greenbrook Estates Finishes Tree Planting Program

by Joan Dunham and Gaylene Vasaturo

On the morning of Saturday, November 20, homeowners in Greenbrook Estates of Greenbelt planted 65 trees in the community common area along the creek, completing a project begun in 1991 to plant trees there. The area formerly consisted of grass, weeds, and large bare patches.

Though somewhat windy, the cool November day was otherwise a good day for the strenuous labor of tree planting. Recent rains had left the soil somewhat softer than usual (although a few tree planting locations had to be abandoned when the tree pits filled with water).

The community is restoring the riparian corridor along the creek to improve the habitat in and along the creek for birds and other wildlife, and to improve the quality of the creek for drainage. Also, the trees will in time provide a buffer between Greenbrook Estates and Green Spring, which both border the planted area.

Several Varieties Planted

The tree planting project was a result of the combined efforts of community members, the Chesapeake Bay Trust Fund, the City of Greenbelt, and the landscape contractor for Greenbrook Estates. The trees were purchased with the aid of a grant from the Trust Fund, the second such grant the community has received for this purpose. The grant was used to purchase white and green ashes, tulip poplars, sycamores, pin oaks, sugar and red maples, and honey locusts from TreeMendous Maryland. River birch and loblolly pines were purchased from Behnke's Nursery and an additional dozen load of wood chips to use as mulch. Lasting Impressions, the landscaping contractor for the community, provided the manpower to dig most of the tree planting pits.

The area along the east end of the creek was cleared during the construction of Greenbrook Estates. After the homes were completed, this area was seeded with grass, but no other plants were replaced. In the fall of 1991, the community planted 70 trees in the area, using the first grant it received from the Chesapeake Bay Trust. With this planting of 65 trees in this area, the community is expecting that the trees will become an established wooded area.

Flowers Added

In addition to trees, the community also planted two beds of daffodils and day lilies, as well as a naturalized planting on a hillside. The day lilies, 650 Stella d'Oros, were donated by Tom and Patty Shawker.

One of the beds was around a large raised manhole cover near where the trees were planted. Bobby Hee of Blue Chip Gardens prepared and planted the bed, using six junipers to help obscure the manhole cover and to serve as a backdrop for the flowers.

In the coming year homeowners hope to add a few hybrid poplars, some shrubs, and perhaps Mountain Laurel to the newly planted area after the trees are large enough to provide protection.

The Greenbelt trees include two in Schrom Hills Park, a longleaf pine and a deodar cedar and an Austrian pine at a private residence on Ridge Road.

Entries for Big Tree Champions may be submitted to M-NOPPC's Mike Mennett at 301-627-6074.
